

WHO IS THAT MAN?

Inside this issue:

Story	1	Kumari is a young girl from northern India. She is bright, caring and welcoming. One day as she looked out her kitchen window she saw the new neighbors who had just moved in and wondered about them. The neighbors were friendly, but somehow different from the people in her small mountain village. One afternoon as she walked home from school she had an idea. She hurried home and ran into the house. "Mama, may I go visit the new neighbors?" she asked. "Yes," Mama answered. "Mrs. Singh has invited us to come over. But you can go before us. Be good."

Kumari hurried down the road. She found Mrs. Singh sweeping the yard. "Welcome!" she said. "I'm so glad you have come to visit." Kumari chatted with Mrs. Singh while the woman worked. Then Mrs. Singh said, "I have some things to do in the house. Come inside, and we can talk some more." Eagerly Kumari followed Mrs. Singh into the house. Everything was neat and clean. Colorful pictures hung on the walls, but they were different from the pictures of the gods that Kumari had seen on other people's walls. Then Kumari's eyes fell on a picture of a man hanging on a cross. "Who is that man?" Kumari asked, pointing to the picture. "His name is Jesus," Mrs. Singh replied. "He is the God we worship."

"But why is He hanging there?" Kumari asked, puzzled. "Sit down, and I will tell you the story," the woman said. Kumari listened intently as Mrs. Singh told the story of Jesus. Mr. Singh came home and sat down with his wife and Kumari. "Would you like to stay and join us as we worship our God?" he asked Kumari. "I think you'll enjoy the songs we sing."

Kumari enjoyed hearing the lovely songs about Jesus. Then they read from their holy book, the Bible, and prayed. She noticed that they talked to their God as though He were a close friend. How different their worship is from ours! Kumari thought. There are no idols, no burning incense, no ringing bells, no reciting of mantras, and no offerings of fruits, oil, sweets, and flowers.

After worship Kumari thanked the Singhs, then hurried home for dinner. She liked this young couple and decided to visit as often as she could, especially around sundown, when she could join their worship. Soon she could sing the Christian songs with them. Often she found herself singing the songs as she worked around the house. Kumari's father noticed that Kumari was spending a lot of time at the Singhs' house. He decided to go with her and meet his new neighbors. He introduced himself to the young couple, and they invited him in. "Your daughter loves to hear the stories we tell her from the Bible," Mr. Singh told Kumari's father.

"Would you like to know what this holy Book says about Jesus Christ too? I'd be happy to teach you." Kumari's father was interested, and father and daughter began going together to the Singhs' home every evening to learn more about God. Sometimes after worship father would send Kumari home while he stayed to talk with Mr. Singh.

Late one night as father was returning from a Bible study, he noticed a crowd of drunken men walking toward him with sticks. They surrounded Father and began to shouting. "What are you doing with these Christians? You must stop meeting with them! If you don't stop, we will hurt you and your family!" "No, I will not stop," Father replied. The men began hitting Kumari's father with their sticks. Kumari's father fell to the ground in pain. He struggled home and told his wife what had happened. As she treated his wounds, he told her, "I am not going to stop learning about God! They are teaching the truth! We will follow the Lord Jesus Christ, and no one can stop us." Many of Kumari's neighbors heard about Father's beating and became curious about the Singhs' God. Some of them began taking Bible studies. Kumari's family and many of their neighbors worshipped the true and living God. We too can learn more about who Jesus. He is our greatest Teacher. He knows who we are and He knows what is best for our lives. Boys and girls, always remain with Jesus. He is always near us and will help us even if we cannot see Him.

“But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and forever! Amen.”
2 Peter 3:18

Kangaroos

Magnets

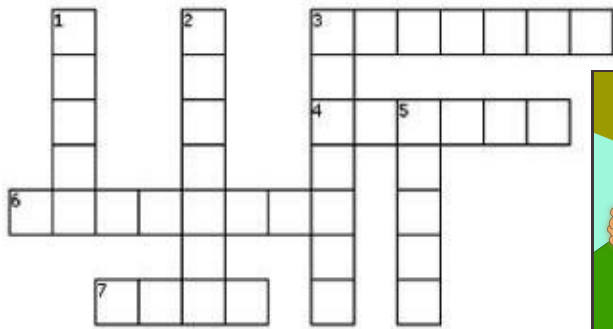

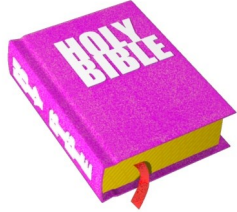

- They are the largest living marsupials from the family Macropodidae. There are 4 species of kangaroos: red kangaroo, eastern grey kangaroo, western grey kangaroo and antilopine kangaroo.
- They are the only large animals to use hopping as a means of locomotion.
- They are found in Australia and Tasmania, as well as on surrounding islands. They live in varied habitats, from forests and woodland areas to grassy plains and savannas.
- Male kangaroos are called boomers, bucks or jacks; females are does, flyers, or jills, and the young ones are joeys. Several kangaroos are called a mob, troop or court.
- Kangaroos are grazing herbivores, which means their diet consists mainly of grasses. They can survive long periods without water.
- Because of its long feet, a kangaroo cannot walk normally. To move at slow speeds, a kangaroo will use its tail to form a tripod with its two forelimbs. It then raises its hind feet

- Magnetic fields by themselves are invisible to the human eye.
- Today's high speed trains use magnets to float each car, reducing friction and allowing the train to run very efficiently.
- Magnets are objects that produce an area of magnetic force called a magnetic field.
- Magnets can be found in common household items as phones, computers, stereos, TVs.
- Electromagnets are created by an electric current running through a surrounding coil. They have many uses including the generation of electricity in hydroelectric dams.
- Magnets have a magnetic north pole and a magnetic south pole. If the same pole of two magnets are placed near each other they will push away (repel), while if different poles are placed near each other they will pull together (attract).
- Magnets are made from materials that contain nickel, iron, or cobalt. When these materials are exposed to a magnetic field, the structure of the material is actually changed on a microscopic level. The molecules are polarized, or rearranged into lines. When enough of the metal is polarized, it becomes a magnet.

forward, in a form of locomotion called "crawl-walking."

- Female kangaroos give birth to one joey at a time. Newborns weigh as little as 0.03 ounces at birth - as small as a lima bean! After birth, the joey crawls into its mother's pouch, where it will nurse and continue to grow and develop up to when they are 1 year old.

“In all His teaching, Christ brought the mind of man in contact with the Infinite Mind. He did not direct the people to study men's theories about God, His word, or His works. He taught them to behold Him as manifested in His works, in His word, and by His providences. Christ did not deal in abstract theories, but in that which is essential to the development of character, that which will enlarge man's capacity for knowing God, and increase his efficiency to do good. He spoke to men of those truths that relate to the conduct of life, and that take hold upon eternity. It was Christ who directed the education of Israel. Concerning the commandments and ordinances of the Lord He said;”

“You shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, when you walk by the way, when you lie down, and when you rise up. ⁸You shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes. ⁹You shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates.” Deuteronomy 6:7-9
